Sharing the past, present and future of a great American Craft

Thank Goodness for the Internet

by Corky Cotton

Let me start by saying we live in a time of information and products exchanged at the speed of light. Goods can be advertised and reviewed then bought and sold instantly thanks to the Internet.

In the winter of 2017 while surfing the Internet, I stumbled upon a Canadian website. I would compare it to an estate sale/garage sale website. I say this because the website policy states buyers are to personally view the piece at the seller's home or business. All items are to be local-pick-up only.

There was an amber Homestead plate listed for peanuts. Even though in several emails I offered them a fair market value, many times more than their $40 Canadian Dollar asking price, they refused to ship it. Well, I wasn't going to drive 1700 miles to look at it.

Fast forward to December of 2018, and here is a listing for what appears to be an amethyst ruffled Persian Medallion bowl. There was only one photo which was very poor taken in dim light. I hit my zoom to get a closer look, and the edge at one ruffle had that look of maybe this was a red piece. I contacted the seller asking about condition and base color. They had no clue what I was asking for concerning base color. I finally after the third email, successfully, got them to send me a photo indicating the base color. My suspicions were correct. This piece was as cherry red as you can get.

Now the tough part began. I ask if they would ship, they said no and that I needed to come to them. Here we go again. I'm not traveling 1500 miles. I explained my situation, and they again said they would not ship. Well...as money talks, I offered them four times their asking price, which was still a hell-of-a-bargain. Now they will ship, however, with no guarantee it would arrive safely. Money was exchanged through Western Union, and the deal was sealed. I explained how to package it, and it arrived two weeks later safe and sound.

It is a wonderful red piece with lots of bright multi-color iridescence. I absolutely love the thing.

So thanks to the Internet, with a little luck, a blind hog can sometimes find a sweet acorn.

HOACGA President's Letter March 2020

by Gary Sullivan

HOACGA is excited to continue in its role as an EDUCATOR of Carnival Glass for its members and others at this year's convention by presenting two very interesting educational seminars. We are pleased that Gary Senkar, an authority on Imperial Glass, will be our presenter on Thursday afternoon at 4pm. Gary started collecting Carnival Glass about 1995 and stretch glass in 1997. Today his interest centers around glass manufactured by The Imperial glass Co. prior to 1930 with a special concentration on the Art Glass Line, aka Imperial Jewels. He also collects carnival, stretch, Free Hand, Lead Lustre, Nuart and non-iridized glass from the period. HOACGA will also present a display room of 100 table sets in classic era Carnival Glass on Friday at 10am featuring many patterns and colors.

HOACGA continuously strives to PROMOTE Carnival Glass as a hobby. And who better to tell about their experiences than Dorothy and Emmett Morgan. Dorothy and Emmett will be our banquet speakers on Saturday evening and the title of their presentation is "Never Ending Thrills and Laughs." Collecting Carnival Glass is about the hunt, the acquiring and even the selling of Carnival Glass. But even more it is about the good times along the way. I know that Dorothy and Emmett love the hobby of Carnival Glass, are great promoters of the glass and they have the stories to back it up.

HOACGA is also very interested in the PRESERVATION of Carnival Glass knowledge. Much has been learned and written about over the last 70 years. The first article written about "Carnival Glass" as a collectible was written in 1952. Carnival appeared in a book entitled Iridescent Glass in 1956. In a 1999 video of George Loescher speaking at the HOACGA convention he noted that future generations could be secure in knowing that Carnival Glass knowledge was being so well documented. Some 20 years later, HOACGA is concerned that much of what was learned could be lost if not preserved. To that end, HOACGA embarked on a project to digitize and store the written word on the internet. From articles to books, from videos to newsletters, HOACGA is well on its way and is excited to present this effort at the Friday luncheon. And anyone attending the Friday luncheon will have the chance to win a door prize. See page six for details.

So HOACGA is doing its part. But if you want to share in this ENJOYMENT that so many of us feel, please consider joining us Wed., April 22 through Sat., April 25 at the Kansas City Airport Embassy Suites.

Please see HOACGA.com for all information including a registration form and a link to make hotel reservations.

SPEAKING OF HOTEL RESERVATIONS. The cutoff date to get the HOACGA negotiated hotel rate of $129 a night is Tuesday, March 31, 2020. After that rooms will be at market rate and there is little we can do to help you. So please help yourself by making your reservation ASAP. Reservations can be canceled at no cost. The hotel cancellation policy is noted on your reservation.

Also, HOACGA is offering discount meal prices for our Friday luncheon, Saturday Brown Bag lunch and Saturday night banquet. Registration forms must be received by Kathi Johnson by April 15.

HOACGA MISSION STATEMENT

"HOACGA is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the EDUCATION, PROMOTION, PRESERVATION, and ENJOYMENT of the Carnival Glass hobby."

Volunteer Opportunities

Any convention relies on volunteers to make everything go smoothly. HOACGA has several volunteer opportunities. Should you want to participate, here are your chances to help!

- Wednesday 8pm - Set up of risers and lights in Salon E.
- Thursday 9am & Friday 3pm – Set up and take down of Table Set Display with Wally and Maxine.
- Friday 3pm – Room Display judges needed. See Gary.
- Friday 8pm - Take down of risers and lights in Salon E. Move small risers to Ambassador Room.
- Help Kathi at the Registration Table. See Kathi.
- Saturday after banquet – help with "tear down" of Ambassador Room.
- Bring an item for the "Silent Auction" table

NEVER ENDING THRILLS AND LAUGHS

We have sold two collections and working on our 3rd collection. Will it be our last? Who knows Emmett said he will not buy patterns we already owned! Has this happened?

Emmett said he will not buy a piece of carnival without my approval!! Is this statement true?

Emmett said he will not buy a piece of glass we already owned? True or false Emmett said he wants more pieces of Millersburg! Has this happened?

Emmett said we should not buy damage glass? Is this correct?

Dorothy said we will buy glass because of beauty, pattern, maker, or a history or memory of that carnival piece or just because we or Dorothy wants it. Has this occurred???

All will be answered at our banquet talk. !!!!

From a glass mecca of America comes Ohioan Gary Senkar, educational speaker

Gary is a retired manufactures' representative who makes his home in the suburbs of Cleveland, OH. Married for 47 years to his wife Cheryl, they have four children and eight grandchildren, ages 11 to 24.

About 1995 Gary started collecting Carnival Glass and Stretch Glass in 1997. Today his interest centers around glass manufactured by The Imperial glass Co., prior to 1930, with a special concentration on the Art Glass Line, aka Imperial Jewels. He also collects Carnival, Stretch, Free Hand, Lead Lustre, Nuart and non-iridized glass from the period. Cheryl particularly likes early boudoir glass of all types and also has a large collection of Santas.

Currently Gary is a director of the Stretch Glass Society and co-chair of the Imperial Glass Museum Archives Committee. He volunteers as often as possible in the archives of the Museum of American Glass in West Virginia.

FRIDAY LUNCHEON DOOR PRIZE!

Would you like the chance to win this very, very hard to find, if not rare, piece of carnival glass? All you need is a ticket to the Friday luncheon at HOACGA Convention Friday April 24, 2020 at the Embassy Suites, Kansas City Airport and be the lucky person whose name is drawn.

It is a Grape and Cable whimsey made by Fenton for Levay Glass Distributing in 1981. It is a whimsey made from the G&C tobacco jar bottom. It is one of the several whimsey shape made from this mould. This is signed 8 of only 50 made in this shape (8/50). Also signed "Levay" "1981". It is an 8 ruffle CRE bowl with lots of opal and butterscotch iridescence. During the time period of 1980-81 Fenton made a series of runs for Levay Glass Distributing in butterscotch aqua opal. Besides Grape and Cable, aqua opal whimsies were made in Butterfly & Berry (from tumbler), Inverted Strawberry (compote), Cherry Chain (chop plate), Hobnail (from various shapes).

Hope to see you at the 2020 HOACGA Convention!

We Remember

Ron Smith

The HOACGA and Texas Carnival Glass Clubs extends its sincerest condolences to the family of Ron Smith, especially to his wife Vickie. Ron passed away in January. Ron was a great asset to the Carnival Glass community and a wonderful friend to all that met him. His home was always open to anyone in the Wichita Kansas area as Ron loved to share his collections with others. He will be missed.

HOACGA Newsletter Editor

Steve Hazlett has decided to retire as the HOACGA Newsletter Editor. For years, Steve was involved in the creation of the HOACGA and Texas newsletters, as well as, the author of many great articles. We wish Steve all the best.

Muehlbauer: The Collection

'The article below was written prior to 2008 and must be read in the context of the time period in which it was published.'

Dugan—Dahlia

Raise your hands if you got the play on words with Dugan-Diamond. Good Tom, Pat, Brian (you cheated!) and Jackie!

Recently it occurred to me that I'm a closet Dugan collector.

I've always thought of myself as a Northwood guy. But my two all-time favorite pieces are both Dugan! They are the killer Heavy Iris water pitcher than came from Burney Talley and now resides in Tennessee, and the 'deep-ruffled' Farmyard bowl that I bought directly from an apple grower (I'm not kidding!) in New Zealand.

Since I had two Farmyards at the time of making my decisions regarding selling our collection, I chose to sell the one that I thought most people would prefer —the one with Tiffany electric blues and bright yellow-golds (emphasis on the yellows.)

That one came back with me on the airplane from KiwiLand also. Those chickens are now scratching for feed in the Orient. The Chicken Bowl that still resides in Oregon has been described as having "electric money" iridescence by some guy from Freeport, IL. As I said, one of my all-time favorite pieces of Carnival Glass.

Another all-time favorite Dugan piece is a pastel marigold Petal & Fan large deep-ruffled bowl.

This didn't make it to the auction either as it was a gift from my favorite Carnival Glass lady, Helen Bell. Don and Connie Moore had this bowl for sale in their room at a long-ago Northern California convention. Helen was tempted to buy it but for some reason deferred. She walked out of Don & Connie's room and turned down the walkway. She saw me 'making the rounds' and so she quick-like-a-rabbit returned back to Don and said, "I'll take it." She and I have always loved pastel marigold pieces and she knew for a certainty that I would have bought this particular bowl. As you can see, it's loaded with my favorite yellows over the soft marigold finish. So yummy you almost want to take a great big bite out of it!

For years I admired this bowl. I used to visit Helen every week. We would talk for hours and believe it or not, not just about carnival! I love this lady. Years after her purchase, she told me the story about her 'about face.' We laughed and laughed and I always assured her, "Yes, I would have (bought the bowl)." Some number of years later, she just up and gave me the bowl— no strings attached. It's still my 'most prized' piece of all time. Every time I look at it, I think of Helen.

But I digress.

In my friend Carl O. Burns' excellent book originally published in 1999, Dugan & Diamond Carnival Glass 1909 - 1932, Carl, in the Introduction, provides a brief discussion on the progression of the glass factory in Indiana, Pennsylvania from 1892 to 1896 when it became the Northwood Company, then the Dugan Glass Company in 1904, then the Diamond Glass company in 1913, finally burning to the ground in 1931. For some reason I thought there was a single glass company called "Dugan-

Diamond Company" at one point, when indeed there were two separate companies. Oh well, so much for my clever (now, not so clever) play-on-words title for this main flowers (Pop Quiz—what flower species would that be?), next in line would be white pieces with the main flowers decorated in gold, then blue ('stain'), then red ('stain.')

While I currently don't own old white Dahlia pieces in any 'colors' other than blue-stained, (I once owned a complete white table set with only the edge gold paint) I suspect that all pieces came with hand-applied gold paint around the

made with this hand-applied gold paint around the edges or in the scroll-work. AND because it's often worn (or worn off) let me speculate that the pieces were not subjected to an additional 'firing' after being hand painted.

Probably the same goes for the pieces where the main flowers were/are decorated --- gold, blue or red. Usually these pieces have good solid 'coloration' on the Dahlias.

article of "Dugan Dahlia."

So let's talk about the "Dahlia" pattern, or more specifically about white Dahlia pieces of Carnival Glass. Unfortunately, in 1977 L.G. Wright had Westmoreland make 'repros' of Dahlia water pitchers using original water pitcher molds in a variety of colors, including white. I say "unfortunately" because the 'old', original white pieces came with as many as 4 different versions using hand-decorated paint, or as some of us refer to (myself included) it as "staining" of the 'main' dahlias. I was, and remain, confused enough by all this!

There are at least four versions of 'old' white Dahlia pieces. I'm guessing, but I'll list them in ever increasing rarity. Don't get me wrong, it's my opinion that all 'old' white Dahlia pieces are either scarce or rare, some are just rarer than others. Okay, most frequently seen would be white pieces with no 'decoration' on the edges or the scroll-work and/or leaves and stems, in the case of the berry sets, and the table set pieces.

Because all CG was mass produced and therefore manufacturing 'runs' and bookkeeping were important considerations, I would guess that all old white pieces were originally

Maybe that was done immediately after extracting the pieces from molds, in other words 'hot,' or maybe even a bit of additional heating after the flowers were stained gold, blue or red. Who knows? Who cares?

Not me! I'm just here to babble on about these special pieces. I may be having yet another senior moment, but I can't offhand remember another CG pattern/color that was subjected to hand painting/staining for the entire production run. Sure, Dugan, who really was the only outfit that made entire production runs of peach opal, also hand decorated some few pieces of PO and some marigold pieces, with flowers and the like, but NOT entire

President's Corner

By Emmett Morgan

As I try to compose this article, it is 19 days before our convention kicks off in Dallas. I hope you have made your hotel reservations and you have mailed your registration to Jeannie Whitley ☐.

Bob and Sandy Sage have lined up some wonderful speakers. Thursday our morning speaker will be Brian Foster demonstrating the Christmas compote mould. Our afternoon speaker is Sue Davis, the author of The Picture Book of Vaseline Glass, who will present "A Unique Look at Vaseline Glass." For our Friday noon banquet, we are honored to have Tony and Mary Jo DeMichael from Illinois. Their presentation "Carnival Family Trees" should be very interesting.

I urge all our members to attend the Business meeting Friday afternoon. This is the year to elect your officers for the next two years. The following officers will run: Emmett Morgan – President, Bob Sage – Vice President, Jeannie Whitley - Treasurer. Randy Thach has agreed to run for Secretary as Sandy Sage will accept the duties of Web Mistress. I encourage all to consider running for any of the above officer positions.

Jim and Jan Seeck are bringing our club a very good auction this year. The live-online auction will be Friday evening and all the glass will be displayed. Dorothy and I have enjoyed multiple live-online auctions at other conventions. Instead of sitting for five or six hours listening to Jim call the auction, a 250 piece auction will last about 2 ½ hours. We will have round tables sitting six to eight people, so you can sit with your friends. Plus, if you need help in using this new bidding format, Jan and others will help you.

If you need last minute hotel reservations after March 4th, please contact me at 713-857-2966 or ecmorgan@alpha1.net.

I am looking forward to visiting with you in Dallas.

Texas Banquet Whimsy Auction

We are auctioning the LAST seven 474 yellow vase whimsies at our banquet luncheon on Friday March 20. These vases were made from the Imperial Glass 11" 474 vase mould for our 40th anniversary in 2019. At our convention last year each family attending our banquet was gifted with one of these 11" vases.

Good luck to all bidders!

production runs, apparently. Score one for white Dahlia uniqueness!

Back to Dahlia as a pattern. I've not seen many 'old' purple Dahlia pieces that I've been particularly attracted to because of their iridescence (although I've seen some 'killer' purple 'repro' water pitchers) although I must admit that I wish I would have bought some old marigold pieces when I saw them. It's a great pattern in marigold and you know they're all 'old' pieces.

All Dahlia pieces rest on four 'scroll-shaped' feet, except the tumblers. This seems to me to make them very vulnerable to chipping. Magically enough, all my pieces are perfect in every way.

The 'new' tumblers have three Dahlias, whilst the 'old' tumblers have 4 Dahlias. But because the 'old' mold was used for the L.G. Wright 'repro' water pitchers, the white pitchers can be confusing. Two things --- go for hand-applied gold paint to the top edge and/or the scroll-feet pattern, or, go for gold, blue or red stained Dahlias to be sure you are getting a "Vintage" (I prefer "old") white water pitcher. As for the purple ones, 'be a collector' --- that should give you the 'smarts' to tell 'old' from 'new.' There are some who feel that another way to tell old from new is by looking at the base of the pitchers. I find that a bit too subjective for my tastes.

A year or two ago, I 'made a deal' with a non-collector, eBay seller for a 'batch' of white/blue old Dahlia pieces. The 'batch' included a master berry bowl, 5 perfect small 'berries' and one berry that was cracked, PLUS a butter base, a covered sugar and a creamer --- all, as I said all with blue stain. When the glass arrived the "cracked" individual berry, not surprisingly, was broken into a zillion pieces. So much for owning a perfect seven pc. set --- six will do quite nicely, thank you very much!

Backing up chronologically, I already owned a complete (6 tumblers) blue-stained white water set which, I had been lucky enough to have bought at Jim Wroda's 2006 Customer Appreciation Weekend auction. (The Wroda weekends are SO much fun!)

This set is unique in that it is the only piece that my lovely bride, Jan (who is NOT a collector,) really, really wanted.....ever! We are SO happy to own it.

It was purchased by Richard Cinclair from Dr. Jones of Arkansas years ago. Dr. Jones was one of the old-time, prominent CG collectors in the 60s and 70s and specialized in water sets. I managed to run down Dr. Jones' phone number and his caregiver put him on the phone. Even though I had never met the man, he immediately was 'back in the carnival world' when I mentioned that I had just purchased the set, and I was interested in finding out, if he remembered, the circumstances of his buying it. Of course, he remembered!

While it was a bit convoluted, the story is that John Woody had 'found' it somewhere up in Minnesota but couldn't "git 'er bought." He called Dr. Jones to ask if he (Dr. J) had ever heard of one. Dr. J had not, and told John that "if and when" --- (when always was the case with John Woody --- a very persuasive man!) John got the set he (Dr. J) was most interested in it.

According to Dr. Jones, John finally managed to get the owner to part with the set and re-contacted Dr. J. Here the story gets a bit fuzzy, but to make a long story short,

Dr. J ended up with the set without it ever being offered by auction.

After Dr. Jones filled me in with the story, he asked, "How much did you give for it?" When I told him, he laughed and said "Cinclair gave me lots more than that for it!" I could hear the delight in his voice from 'talking carnival.' That's one of the un-sung, delicious benefits of our hobby, isn't it? Memooooorieeee! (Hum right along!)

My research indicates that 2 white-blue sets were sold at auction --- a set with 5 tumblers in 1999 for $3,250 and a full set in 2000 for $4,250.

I have no idea whether that is the same set in both those cases or even if it is the set I'm now looking at. Really doesn't matter does it? All the same, if any of you reading this has any more facts about this/these set(s), I'd love to hear them.

Like I said, I suspect that red-stained pieces are even more scarce than blue-stained ones. I asked for input through the Woodland website and received responses from two nice ladies who had owned red individual berry bowls. I also heard from another collector that she still owns a red-stained covered sugar and a creamer. Another collector sent in a picture of a gorgeous red-stained Dahlia pitcher (you could see the afore-specified gold edge trim) along with a redstain tumbler.

Yet another collector told me she owns a red-stained Pitcher and two tumblers. They DO exist! Another collector had once seen a 'complete' blue stained "suite" --- complete water set, complete table set and a complete berry set. I'm almost there --- just one meager small berry bowl to go!

But for now I'm quite content to label myself as The King of White, Blue-Stain old Dahlia pieces. It's good to be King!
